REICHERS RESCUED AT SEA

FLYER FORCED DOWN AND HURT AS GOAL NEAR

Famous Rescue Team
Saves Aviator As Plane Fails

ABOARD S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, May 14—Lou Reichers, young New Jersey flier who lost a gallant fight to span the Atlantic, was under care of ship's surgeon today, pulled out of an angry ocean by America's most famous maritime rescue team, Capt. Geo. B. Fried and Chief Officer Harry Manning.

The Fried-Manning combination, already honored for its phenomenal ability to be in the right place at the right time for a sea rescue and to do its work precisely in the face of danger, "clicked" again. Reichers' airplane, "Liberty," the highest powered aircraft ever to venture over the Atlantic, was claimed by the ocean. Manning's lifeboat also was abandoned after Reichers had been taken out of his gold and black speed machine, his nose broken and his face lacerated.

The flier said he was forced to land because one wing of his plane was damaged and his precious fuel supply was almost gone. He was sighted at 9:10 p. m. G. M. T. (4:10 p. m. E. S. T.) forty-seven miles from Fastnet and four miles off Cape Clear, Ireland.

The weather near the cape was anything but clear. Mist hung over the ocean. If the luck of Fried and Manning had not held and if Reichers had been a few miles off his course, the officer on watch might never have sighted the airplane, a mere speck buffeted about in high seas.

The President Roosevelt's passengers had finished dinner and were chatting in the salons when the ship slowed down suddenly. News that an airplane had been sighted spread rapidly. Soon the passengers were at the rail while Capt. Fried gave his orders from the bridge and Manning summoned the crew of lifeboat No. 10.

A strong southwest wind was blowing. The President Roosevelt's search lights picked up the form of an airplane, a low winged, beautifully stream lined machine.

Lindberghs Have Only Memories As First Born Reduced To Ashes

Father Watches As Child
Cremated; Bears
Up Well

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 14.—An urn of ashes and a tragic mixture of rolicking, happy memories and tortured days were left today for the Lindberghs, but the spirit of the Lindbergh's was unbroken.

Dr. John Grier Hibben of Princeton University, their close friend, visited them last night after the father went alone to witness the cremation of his boy, even as he flew alone to Paris five years ago this month.

"Neither has broken down," Dr. Hibben said in refusing reports that one or both had collapsed.

"Although both are under a tremendous mental strain, they are bearing what they have to bear most bravely."

The colonel returned home from the crematory at Linden about 7 o'clock last night, angry and grieved, one friend said, over reports he and Mrs. Lindbergh had broken down.

Lindbergh, gaunt, bowed, and silent viewed the mutilated body of his baby found Thursday within sight of his home, then expressed a wish that it be cremated at once "to get it over."

And he alone of the family, remained for the ordeal which might have been spared him but for the sake of a formality. He stood hands clenched and watched the consuming fire as it destroyed the body of the baby whose life had been destroyed by wanton killers. There were no sobs, there was no hysteria as he stood there.

He had gone into the undertaking rooms, had been told to enter the small chapel, and there he walked firmly to the table where an oaken casket held the skeleton of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

There was one moment of silence.

"Colonel Lindbergh", Prosecutor Marshall asked, "are you convinced this body is that of your infant?"

The flier bent low, then straightened up.

"Yes, it is."

He turned, entered another room—alone—and closed the door. A few minutes later he returned and stood by his friend, Colonel Henry C. Breckinridge.

The crowd outside, standing in respectful silence, was ordered

DEMOCRATS BUSY ON EMERGENCY BILL TO END UNEMPLOYMENT

President Pledges Government Aid For Relief

WASHINGTON, May 14.—A group of Democratic senators worked today over the draft of an emergency unemployment relief bill which would throw billions of dollars into what President Hoover describes as a war against "the economic consequences of over-liquidation and unjustified fear as to the future of the United States."

The necessity of emergency action was recognized by Mr. Hoover in a new statement pledging the government to an "unceasing campaign to re-establish public confidence."

It was emphasized further in a strongly worded appeal laid before the President by the heads of the seven great railroad labor brotherhoods, an appeal containing these lines:

"Unless something is done to provide employment and relieve distress among the families of the unemployed, we cannot be responsible for the orderly operation of the railroads."

"If something is not immediately done, we will be obliged to demand a dole."

The special Democratic committee headed by Senator Wagner of New York is using the following as a basis of consideration in drafting the relief bill:

1—Diversion of $300,000,000 from the reconstruction finance corporation of loans to states for direct relief.

2—Increase the borrowing power of the reconstruction corporation to provide funds for work-creating and "self-liquidating" construction and improvement projects.

3—A federal bond issue of $1,000,000,000 for public building projects next year.

President Hoover and the Democrats are in accord on the first item. The President himself advanced the second part of the plan proposing to double the borrowing power of the reconstruction corporation to $3,000,000,000. The federal bond issue plan is generally favored by the Democrats, but is stubbornly opposed by the President.

In his statement late yesterday on the relief program Mr. Hoover reiterated his opposition to a bond issue.

"If unity of action on these extension of powers are kept within the limits I have proposed," he said. "They do not affect the budget. They do not constitute a drain on the taxpayer. They constitute temporary mobilization of timid capital for positive and definite purpose of speeding the recovery of business, agriculture and employment."

The railroad labor leaders, along with their demand that something be done, submitted to the President a proposal for a 25-year moratorium on war debt payments to the United States. They held that loss of foreign trade was a leading cause of the domestic depression and contended that the war debt situation blocked all prospects of recovery in this trade.

The moratorium would be conditional on the declaration by the debtor countries of a similar moratorium on reparations from Germany. In addition, part of the war debts owing to this country would be cancelled if the debtors increased their purchases of American goods. This is similar to the scheme advanced by Alfred E. Smith.

The railroad men planned to lay their proposals before congress today.

THINKS KIDNAPERS WANTED LINDBERGH

NORFOLK, Va., May 14.—Captain Frank H. Lackmann, of the yacht Maroon, used by Norfolk negotiators in an attempt to contact kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, today expressed the opinion that the kidnapers intended to abduct Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

"These men asked no ransom before the baby's delivery," Lackmann told the United Press. "They said they would return the child safe and sound and depend on Mr. Curtis' good faith to pay them later."

"What could they have been aiming at if not to get Lindbergh?"

ACTRESS RETURNS

JOLIET, Ill., May 14.—As suddenly as she disappeared, Leycester Lane, 24, beautiful platinum blonde dancer, reappeared and told a story of being kidnaped for ransom. Miss Lane said her abductors released her despite threats to "cut her throat" if she did not meet their demands. She had been missing since Sunday.

Compel Cashier And Bookkeeper To Help Gather Money

GRATIS, O., May 14.—Armed with pistols, two bandits held up the cashier and bookkeeper of the Gratis State Bank today and escaped with $1,000 in currency and $500 in silver.

Joining a third companion stationed at the wheel of a waiting auto, the robbers drove away in the direction of Eaton. Pedestrians noted the license number on the car, a sedan, and it was reported the plates had been issued to a Dayton resident.

Norman Kimmel, cashier, and Opal Mobley, bookkeeper, were compelled to assist the bandits in gathering up currency and silver, which was deposited in a bag.

The Gratis bank was virtually wrecked November 25, 1930 by a group of bandits, who blew up the vault, captured the town and escaped with $5,000.

MAYOR AND FORMER OFFICIAL GUILTY OF MALFEASANCE

Butler, Pa., Officials
Convicted Of Fraud
Charges

BUTLER, Pa., May 14.—Mayor Charles H. Kline of Pittsburgh, and his former supplies director, Bertram L. Succop were found guilty of malfeasance in office here today.

The jury of four women and eight men reached the verdict after thirty-two hours deliberation, and it was read when court convened today.

Mayor Kline was found guilty on one count and Succop on twenty-nine.

The verdict removes the mayor from office, although such removal will await the outcome of appeals from the findings of the Butler County jury. Succop already has been removed from the office through action of the mayor when charges first were brought that city buying of supplies was not according to law.

The charges against the mayor and his deposed director of supplies said favoritism was shown certain companies in the purchase of supplies, disregarding the required competitive bidding and proper advertising for such bids.

The mayor was indicted on forty-eight counts, thirty-five of which Judge Thomas D. Fletcher, of Philadelphia, trial judge, quashed before they reached the jury. Seven counts against Succop were quashed.

PROSECUTOR STARTS SECRET INQUIRY AT SCENE OF DISCOVERY

Combination Of Liquor Racketeers And Natives Of Sourland Mountains Involved In One Theory;
Seek Condon and Curtis Negotiators

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The coast guard is concentrating its efforts to apprehend a certain ship said to be involved in the Lindbergh case, around Long Island and New York City.

Officials said seventy-five vessels including six destroyers were engaged in the search which extends from southern Virginia to northern Massachusetts.

TRENTON, N. J., May 14.—A new and secret line of inquiry, which Prosecutor Erwin Marshall is confident will yield results, opened today as the massed forces of the federal, state and metropolitan police sought the wanton slayers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Marshall, 60 years old, will pursue an independent course in connection with his mysterious plan.

"I am today pursuing an investigation at the scene where the body was found," he said. "I am starting on a new clue never investigated before. I expect it to yield results."

Meanwhile at Flemington, Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., of Hunterdon County, said he and Marshall had been placed in charge of the investigation by Attorney General William A. Stevens.

This tended to emphasize reports of difficulties between the prosecutors and state police which were furthered by Marshall's expressed conviction that material obtained by state police from various sources—including Dr. John F. Condon and John Hughes Curtis—thus far was of little real value.

SEARCH UNPRODUCTIVE

"I understand that the state police searched the hillside on the Sourland Mountain section," Marshall said today, "but as far as other sections are concerned they made no search except to inspect telephone and telegraph lines when they paid particular attention to wire tapping."

Meanwhile, Hauck said the Hunterdon County grand jury would convene Monday but he said as far as he knew no indictments would be returned in connection with the Lindbergh case.

"There is absolutely nothing in the way of evidence upon which arrests could be made now," Marshall said here. "John Hughes Curtis has not proved he was ever in touch with the kidnapers."

"Colonel Breckenridge told me yesterday at the morgue that there have been more than 100 determined efforts to cash in on this kidnaping, either by gangs or individuals. I know such efforts were being made but I didn't suspect there were so many of them. I see no reason why each and every person who has attempted to capitalize on the kidnaping, through false information or false promises, should not be punished. I shall extend every aid toward such prosecution."

TRENTON, N. J., May 14.—Liquor racketeers, possibly aided by a Sourland Mountain native, kidnaped and murdered the Lindbergh baby, according to a theory strengthened by revelations within the past few hours.

These revelations included the fact that "go between" and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh were convinced kidnappers they dealt with knew every detail concerning the kidnaping—details withheld from newspapers and the public. For instance:

JAFSIE GIVEN PROOF

Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" who talked to purported kidnappers then tossed them a $50,000 package in a Bronx cemetery, was shown garments that convinced Colonel Lindbergh and himself the negotiators were not lying.

And John Hughes Curtis, the Norfolk boat builder, had proof so strong that he was dealing with the actual kidnappers, that it convinced Colonel Lindbergh even after the latter had been duped, supposedly, in his $50,000 "Jafsie" deal.

Authorities announced too, that certain ransom notes received revealed definite and absolute knowledge of the exact details of the crime; facts that could not be disputed. This led today, incidentally, to a demand by Dr. Grier Hibben of Princeton that the notes be published the world over in facsimile in the hope that the handwriting might be recognized.

ROSNER COPIED NOTE

It was revealed further that Morris Rosner, under cover man at one time for the government, and later active in the underworld, had a copy of the original ransom note obtained while he assisted Colonel Lindbergh in the kidnap hunt. Rosner traced a copy of this note for two New York underworld go-betweens, Salvatore Spitalo and Irving Blitz.

Several versions of that note, all somewhat similar, have been published. Police, however, have denied their authenticity despite demands that the original be published in an effort to trace the killers.

POINTS TO RACKETEERS

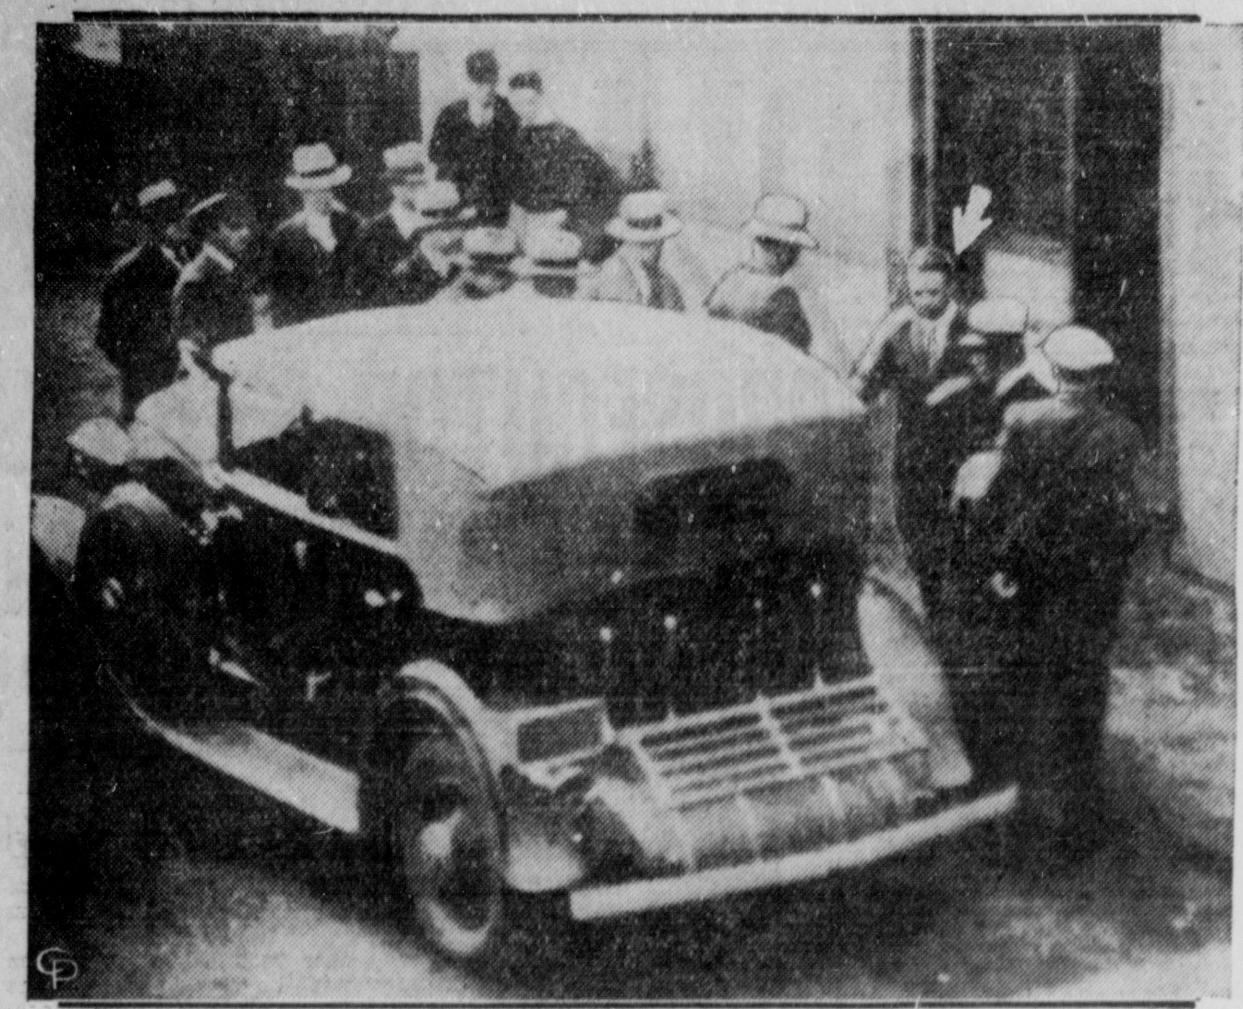

These facts, when assembled with other evidence, strengthened the theory that alcohol racketeers who sought refuge in the Sourland hills for their illicit business figured in the crime.

Once again the veiled suggestions by natives that the liquor distillers in the hills had discussed such a plot were recalled. One woman had claimed she was approached by four of the strangers, temporarily resident in the district, in such a plot.

The liquor racket, it was ex-

Pictures Tell Story Of Kidnaping Tragedy

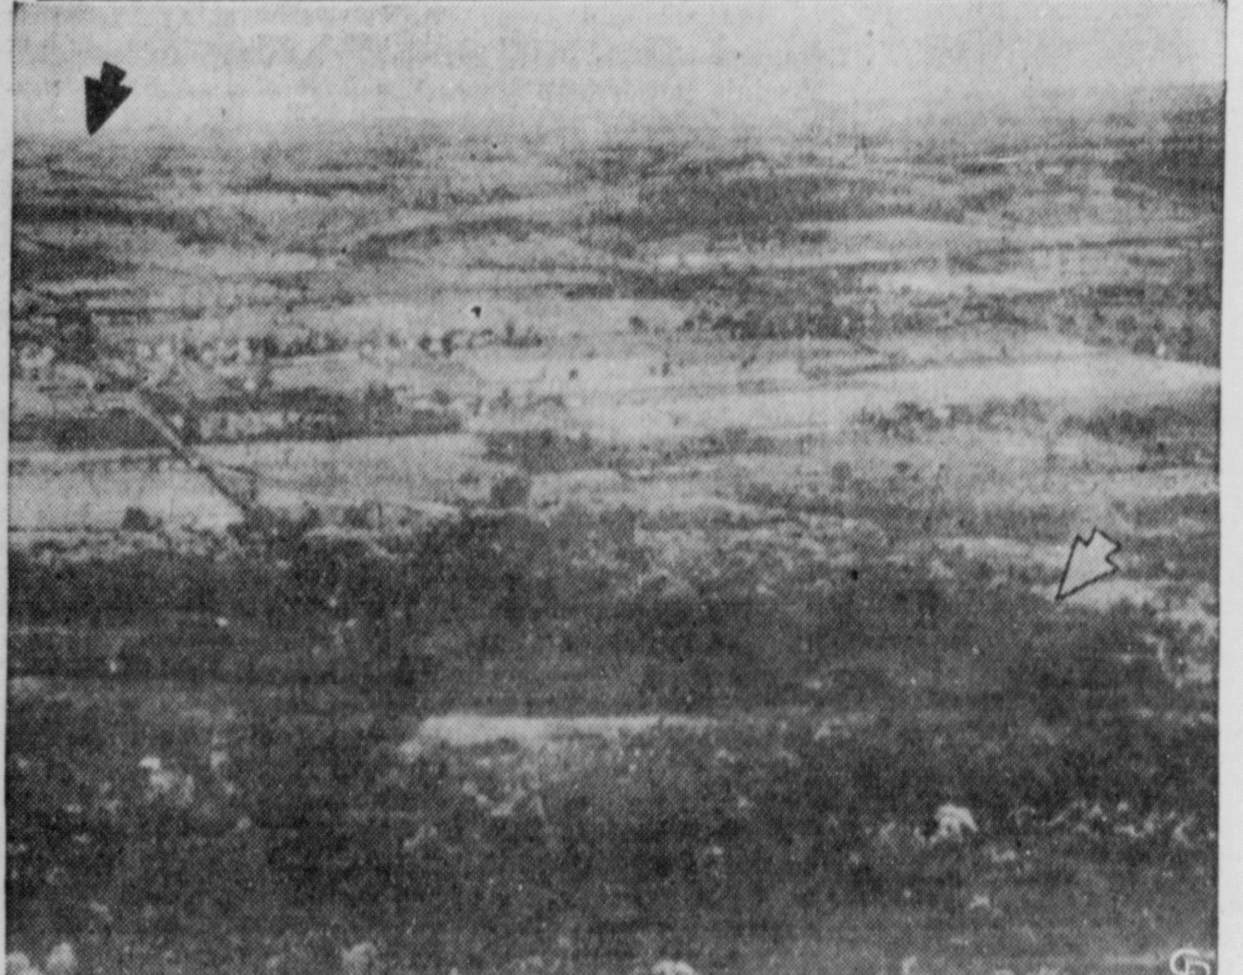

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, third from right, is snapped leaving the morgue in Trenton, N. J., to Rose Hill crematory at Linden, N. J. The car is a dark-colored sedan with a white top.

COLONEL AND MRS. CHARLES LINDBERGH

Various activities of Dr. John F. Condon, who paid $50,000 to alleged kidnapers, are pictured here, together with his home in the Bronx, New York.

This general view, snapped from a plane, of the region around the Lindbergh estate near Hopewell, N. J., shows the relative distance between the spot where the body was found and the Lindbergh house. The Lindbergh house is indicated by the arrow, left, and found on Mt. Rose Hill, and the Lindbergh house, a few miles Hopewell is between the arrows.

Frank Cybulski, a messenger boy, is shown in Detroit as he delivered the tragic message from Hopewell to the home of Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, grandmother of the Lindbergh baby, apprising her of the child's death. Mrs. Lindbergh left shortly afterwards for the Lindbergh home near Hopewell.

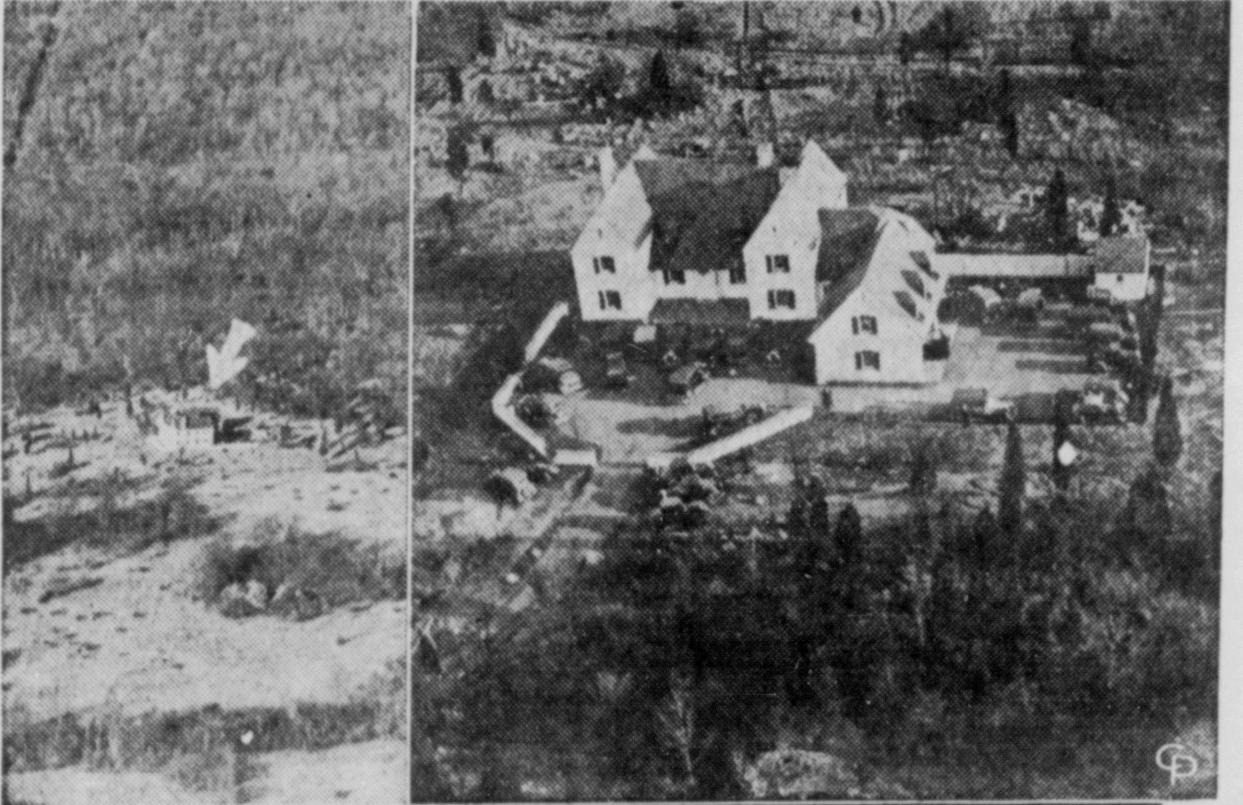

Dr. Charles H. Mitchell, Mercer County physician, who performed the autopsy on the body of the Lindbergh baby, and definitely disclosed that the child had been murdered, is shown here. At right, the entrance to the morgue at Trenton, N. J., where the baby's body was taken.

Mrs. Morrow

Mrs. Lindbergh

Mrs. Dwight Morrow, left, and the child's grandmothers, Mrs. Morrow has been constantly with her daughter, Anne Lindbergh, since the kidnaping occurred, while Mrs. Lindbergh has been teaching her high school classes in Detroit.

The desolate country surrounding the Lindbergh home near Hopewell is depicted here. Photos show two air views of the Lindbergh estate and a lonely lane nearby, similar to that at Mount Rose where the child's body was found. The isolation probably prevented earlier discovery.

Hearse bearing mutilated remains of the Lindbergh baby is pictured leaving the morgue in Trenton, N. J., for Rose Hill crematory at Linden, N. J. The car of Colonel Lindbergh followed later.

William Allen, Negro, finder of the body of the Lindbergh baby, is snapped with Orville Wilson, with whom he was when the discovery was made, pointing to the spot in a thicket on Mt. Rose Hill, near Hopewell, N. J., where the body of the child lay for two months following the kidnaping and murder. Inset, left, is a close-up of Allen, and inset, right, Orville Wilson. The two were driving a truck along the lonely Mt. Rose road when the discovery was made.

Betty Gow, former nurse for Baby Lindbergh, identified the garments found by the body. Baby Charles Lindbergh sketched by Artist A. J. Buescher as he appeared on the night of his kidnaping.

The affair, in which the college trustees were also supposed to take part, was originally scheduled for last Monday, while the trustee board was holding its annual meeting, but unfavorable weather conditions caused a postponement until Friday.

Preparatory to the four-mile hike through the Antioch glen to Wiley Park, situated east of Yellow Springs near the Clifton gorge, the marchers assembled on the college campus at 3 p. m. while the college band played music.

The long tramp terminated in a picnic dinner at the park, after which a program of athletic events including an impromptu baseball game, was held.

Sketch Story Of Baby Lindbergh's Kidnaping And Death

Baby Charles Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnaped from his nursery on the night of March 1, taken from his crib by someone who left a note pinned to the window sill telling Colonel Lindbergh he would receive instructions later.

The news of the baby's kidnaping shocked the world, penetrating every corner of the globe by radio and telegraph. For days the American people and those of many foreign lands had interest in little else except his return.

The kidnapers, or racketeers, taking advantage of the plight of the Lindberghs, negotiated through Dr. J. F. Condon, Fordham University professor, for ransom. Dr. Condon, believing he was on the right track, paid $50,000 ransom in New York.

The baby was not returned as promised, however, and there followed an intensive effort to contact the kidnapers again both by land and by sea. Other negotiators joined in the attempt and Colonel Lindbergh made many flights in the quest of his son.

Then after more than two months William Allen, Negro, stumbled on the body of the little child in a woods on Mt. Rose Hill, a few miles from Hopewell, N. J., the baby's home. Baby Lindbergh had been murdered, it was discovered, a short while after his abduction.

Mrs. Lindbergh, expecting another child soon, had returned from Englewood, N. J., with her mother a few hours before the body was found. Officials believe the child was kept in the woods by his captors for a few days because of the finding of a thermos bottle.

MAY BE ENROLLED AT

CEDARVILLE HIGH

In an effort on the part of the Xenia Twp. board of education to balance its budget and economize, a proposition is under consideration whereby 140 school children residing in Xenia Twp., may be transported to Cedarville High School during the 1932-33 school year.

The township board has been paying $90 a year in tuition money for each pupil who attends Central High School in Xenia, and it is considered possible that a substantial saving in tuition fees could be made by enrolling them at Cedarville.

Transfer of the 140 pupils to Cedarville instead of Xenia city would mean a loss of $12,500 in revenue for the city school board during the next school year. Cedarville High is also an accredited school.

The proposition is said to hinge partly on the availability of a part or all of an unused Cedarville College building for high school purposes.

Other members of the cast of "Cock Robin" include Miss Bertha Hyman, Miss Evelyn Perrill, Edward Higgins, Robert Downing and Archer Maxwell.

The play is open to the public and tickets may be obtained from members of the cast or at Jones' drug store, the Hy-Art Shop, Snider's drug store, Miller Electric Shop, Sohn's drug store or Geyer's. Tickets may also be purchased at the door Tuesday evening. Patrons who have been unable to attend all of the plays this season may receive full value of their season ticket by bringing a guest or guests, as many as their tickets call for, to the final performance.

STUDENTS INSPECT

LIVESTOCK MARKET

AND PACKING PLANT

Forty-four Greene County vocational agriculture students of Beaver Creek and Bath Twp. High Schools paid a visit Friday to Cincinnati for the purpose of furthering their study of livestock marketing on a terminal market.

The trip took the group of boys through the Union stock yards, where they received instruction in grading and handling various kinds of livestock to meet the requirements of packers. The students were guests of the Producers Co-operative Commission Association.

The tour also included a trip through Kahns Packing Co., where the boys saw cattle, lambs and hogs slaughtered, dressed and made ready for retail trade. Later the group visited the studios of WLW, broadcasting station.

The delegation included thirty boys from Beaver Creek High and nine from Bath High. All students of the vocational agriculture departments. The boys were accompanied by J. R. Kimber, former county agent, Lawrence Evans and two vocational teachers, Fred D. Bates of Bath, and A. A. Neff of Beaver.

BEFRIENDED YOUTH

ROBS BENEFACTOR

Alleged to have stolen $7 from a couple who had befriended him, Paul Nixon, 20, Wilmington, will be arraigned in Municipal Court Monday on a petit larceny charge filed by Dr. W. K. Ruble, Clinton County health physician.

Nixon, who had been in Texas, was given a "lift" in an auto in which Dr. and Mrs. Ruble were returning from Dayton to their home in Wilmington last May 11, authorities say.

The Wilmington youth, with whom the physician was acquainted, rode in the back seat from Dayton to Zimmerman, where he got out. Later, Mrs. Ruble was said to have discovered that $7 was missing from a pocketbook she had left on the rear seat of the auto.

A warrant was sworn out on Nixon's arrest and he was taken into custody at Wilmington Friday. Authorities said the youth claimed he had taken only $3 from the purse.

HEALTH ROUND-UP

PLANNED NEXT WEEK

Is your child starting to school this fall? This was the call issued Saturday by school authorities as a pre-school round-up for all children entering the first grade this year will be held at Central High School building Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Xenia physicians are giving their time and service for the examination and parents are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to have their children examined free of charge.

Louis Hammerle, superintendent of schools, is strongly urging this examination as a first step toward the child entering school.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come. —Proverbs, xxxi, 25.

UP TO SENATE

The question of making a material and saving reduction in the National budget is a question of courage on the part of members of Congress in the face of the enemy. By the enemy we mean principally the lobbyists and other clamorous for unreduced appropriations for pet schemes and selfish projects, who constitute the "locust swarm."

The members of the House of Representatives collapsed badly in their recent test. The Omnibus Economy measure went on the rocks and was smashed to bits. The remnants of it are now turned over to the Senate for care and treatment.

What amount of grit and patriotism will the Senate develop?

Up to this time that body has indicated that it possesses considerably more sense of responsibility and courage than the House has. This may be in part because a considerable number of the members will be "hold overs" this autumn and their personal political fortunes do not depend upon the outcome of the election. Anyhow, measures to restore the savings eliminated by the House and then add to them, are being considered seriously in the Chamber.

How far the Senators will go in this direction is a matter of very great moment to the people of the United States.

Private business is pretty well deflated. Costs and prices are down; perquisites and sinecures have been cut out. The situation is approaching a solid, rock bottom basis. But public business is still being run in Washington mostly on a pre-depression scale.

That is the really perilous spot in the National situation. It is the thing which is doing most to delay the general confidence that must be a prelude to recovery.

If Congress will listen to President Hoover and work with him to cut out waste, extravagance, and special tribute to blackmailing, and racketeering groups; if it will go through with a program of public economy, no matter who cries "halt" or threatens, and no matter how many promise to go to the polls and "get" those who dare to vote against special graft and privilege; if Congress will do this, the United States should soon be through the shoals and into clear water with the wind off shore.

IN THIRD CABIN

The titled wife of the Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in India crossed the Atlantic the other day in a tourist third cabin—and thereby made the headlines. Asked why she traveled so simply she said:

I am only here for a fortnight to see my son. Why should I spend a lot of money uselessly to do it? We were very comfortable in the tourist accommodations.

A very practical and common sense explanation. The purpose of crossing the Atlantic is to get from one side of it to the other. Speed, safety and comfort are the essences of the trip. The expensive frills of first cabins are not essential. They used to have a saying in Europe that only royalty and Americans traveled first class. A good many Americans today are traveling second and third class and saving their pennies.

As a matter of fact the whole world is traveling third cabin today. The War's aftermath has cut a swath through personal wealth in the United States. Great Britain and every other country in the family of nations. Six and seven figure incomes are not so numerous now as they were a few years ago. The number of men in this country who have seen their millions deflated to little or nothing would surprise gentlemen in Washington who talk about financing the country out of the higher brackets of the income tax. As a result of this condition, a great many people are forced to do what Lady Chetwode did: Cut out the useless spending of a lot of money they haven't got.

WHAT IS ECONOMY?

Moves to reduce expenditures in the field of public education will necessitate a careful appraisal of what constitutes true economy. It is doubtful if retrenchment in the school budgets that restricts the ability of schools to maintain or achieve the highest possible standards of instruction represents true economy.

There is, among many municipalities where the cultural level of the citizenry is comparatively low, a decidedly reactionary trend manifesting itself toward education. The demands for economy in those places have found the school budget the cynosure of efforts toward retrenchments. These attacks on school funds only too often indicate a lack of comprehension as to the actual remunerative value of education and the disaster that may attend any ill-advised vitiation of the system.

The long view, however, reveals education as yielding a maximum return in value to the community. It sees in the educated man a better producer a better technician and a better consumer as the result of advanced standards of living. Education as a fundamental investment, paying dividends in terms of efficiency, happiness, and ability to solve the problems that beset nations from every angle, has long been the conception held by the more progressive municipalities.

Those towns are making retrenchments but are making every effort to avoid impairing the quality of instruction. Some towns are achieving this by lengthening the hours of teachers' work, others by eliminating extraneous athletic and social activities. The reduction of teachers' pay is avoided as an attack on the integrity of the school system.

Those municipalities that have leaped voraciously at the school budget have demonstrated a misapprehension of education's contributions. For from education should issue an understanding of affairs that will correct the conditions which have made business recession possible.

TOLD IN PICTURE

Seventy years ago in England the author of "Alice in Wonderland," by profession a teacher of mathematics, was also among the first amateur photographers. Although Lewis Carroll is remembered for the fairy stories he made up for the pleasure of three little girls, one of that trio to this day has not forgotten the thrilling moments she and her sisters were permitted to spend in the dark room watching pictures emerge mysteriously upon sheets of white paper.

Since those days of clumsy plates and faulty development, the camera has kept pace with the machine age. Its mechanism has grown more perfect, more compact, and in a sense more simple. The art of photography provides a medium through which aesthetic principles may be scientifically applied to the preservation of beauty, wherever found. It has become a servant to history in recording events and personages pictorially. It delights the latest amateur and challenges skill of the most careful student.

"Where Every Prospect Pleases, and Only Man Is Vile"

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT REGRETS "SNOOTY" ATTITUDE OF TEACHERS

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

In an eastern city the superintendent of schools was heard to say that he greatly regretted that there was so marked a gulf between the elementary teachers of his school and the junior and senior high school teachers. "We cannot deny the fact that the high school teachers in this city look down on the elementary teachers as inferior," he said.

Parents don't consider the high school teachers superior, as a group. Parents know elementary teachers better, have had more contact with them and find them, therefore, more approachable. The average elementary teacher knows more about the homes of her children, takes more of a human interest in her pupils. One reason probably is that younger children are more dependent and call for more personal care on the part both of the parent and the teacher. Another reason is that the high school teacher must specialize and, therefore, must meet many students during a single day, and has her interest considerably turned from pupils as personalities to the subject matter taught.

Regardless of what parents think of high school teachers, they as a group feel somewhat superior to the elementary teachers. In most cities high school teachers receive a higher salary than do grade teachers—and money does talk. Also the academic requirements in most cities for high school teachers is higher than for elementary school teachers. In many school systems only college graduates can be employed as high school teachers; some systems, indeed, require a master's degree. In some systems two years of training beyond the high school and rarely more than four years are required of elementary teachers. In academic training, therefore, high school teachers are superior to elementary teachers.

High school teachers with more academic training than grade school teachers ought to be in the lead in parent-teacher work and home-school relationships. But they are not. Relatively few high school teachers are interested in parent-teacher work; few even know what it is all about.

The high school principal is in a strategic position now. If he only knew it he would have the opportunity to do a very valuable piece of education-in-service of his teachers by leading them in a study of the home, in making them actively interested in parent education, and in parent-teacher work—undoubtedly the most promising educational field opening in the next decade.

I should like to hear from leaders in junior and senior high school parent-teacher associations, particularly about the successes of your organization. Also I shall be glad to answer questions. In case a personal reply is desired, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Editor's Note: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry C. Myers, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Punishments and Rewards" and "Fear."

POEMS THAT LIVE

THE PINES AND THE SEA

Beyond the low marsh-meadows and the beach,
Seen through the hoary trunks of windy pines,
The long blue level of the ocean shines.
The distant surf, with hoarse, complaining speech,
Out from its sandy barrier seems to reach;
And while the sun behind the woods declines,
The morning sea with sighing boughs combines,
And waves and pines make answer, each to each.
O melancholy soul, whom far and near,
In life, faith, hope, the same sad undertone
Pursues from thought to thought! thou needs must hear
An old refrain, too much, too long thine own:
'Tis thy mortality tinges thine ear;
The mournful strain was in thyself, alone.

Conclusion of the first six scheduled rounds of softball competition in the American League indicates the title race may eventually narrow down to two teams.

Company L, National Guard, held in slight regard before the season began, is perched in first place and is still unbeaten, primarily because of the effective south-paw brand of pitching given the team by Harris Lane.

The militia softballers were held to a tie score by Central High, after which they beat the O. S. and S. O. Home cadets and the Ex-Highs.

The cadets are in second place by virtue of victories over the Ex-Highs and Central High, and the team's batting strength may turn the tide before the season is over.

Central High did not win a game during the first round of play, but on the other hand it lost only one contest, playing tie games with both Company L and the Ex-Highs before cracking under the strain and yielding to the cadets.

The Ex-Highs made the poorest showing of the four teams, but when their defense and offense begins clicking smoothly, the other three teams may have their troubles.

All things considered, the four American League entries appear to be well matched and a runaway race does not appear likely.

"Skipper" Finlay, second baseman for the Downtowners, probably thinks his "kid" brother, Kenneth, is trying to "show him up" this season. Kenny is also a second baseman, covering the keystone cushion for Company L in the American League. He has been burning up the league with his batting, crashing out six hits, including a home run and two doubles in ten times up in three games. "Skipper" can still show him a few tricks about fielding the second base position, however.

Three weeks of spring football practice for prospective members of Xenia Central High's grid squad ended recently, leaving Coach "Pinky" Wilson not much the wiser concerning his prospects for the 1932 season. On the first day of practice, fifty candidates turned out. On the last day the number had dwindled to about ten. "Pinky" found out some things he wanted to know and some things he didn't want to know, he said.

The 1932-33 Buckeye basketball schedule is virtually complete with the exception of booking a couple of games to be played along about the time of the Christmas holidays.

HAFEY IS LEADING NATIONAL HITTERS

NEW YORK, May 14.—Chick Hafey, sold "down the river" to Cincinnati, leads the National League batters with an average of .413, according to figures released today and including games of Thursday. The former St. Louis Cardinals outfielder has hit safely in 26 of his 62 turns at bat.

Jimmy Fox, Philadelphia's husky first baseman, continues to lead the American batters with a mark of .436.

Jim Collins, St. Louis, leads the National in homers, 5, and Fox has most in the American, 5.

Lon Warneke of the Chicago Cubs tops National pitchers with five victories, no defeats, and Lloyd Brown and Carl Fischer of Washington lead American hurlers with 3 and none.

The New York Giants are first in the National club batting, .290, and last in club fielding, .550. Cincinnati and Philadelphia lead in club fielding, .572.

New York Yankees lead American clubs in batting, .290, and Washington's Senators lead in club fielding, .582.

Friday The 13th Unlucky For Andersons

LOSE TO CHAMPIONS DESPITE PITCHING OF BEST; SCORE 4-2

Langs Make Their Six Hits Count For Another Win

Being naturally endowed with superstitious natures, you could hardly blame Anderson's Abattoirs for bawling the fact they had to play a National League softball game with the champion Lang Chevroleters on Friday the 13th.

The events of the evening also took the field with some misgivings, and their suspicion of an impending calamity was entirely justified.

Backing up Pitcher Harry Williams with sparkling support in the pinches, the city champions presented the Abattoirs, hitherto unbeaten in two games this season, with their first defeat. The score was 4 to 2.

Therefore, Anderson's probably precipitated a four-way tie for first place in the league. Equal shares in the league leadership are now possessed by Anderson's, Langs, Xenia Chick Hatchery and Downtowners, each with a record of two games won and one lost.

The long-awaited Abattoir-Lang contest, viewed by an overflow crowd, soon resolved itself into a slab battle between Pitchers Eugene Perrine and Harry Williams. Williams allowed eight hits, but was virtually unhit in the last seven rounds.

Perrine twirled effectively, granting only six hits, but his support double-crossed him in the sixth and seventh innings.

Andersons grouped three hits by Green, Perrine and Kersey to tally a run in the first inning, scoring another in the second with the aid of Peters and Birk and errors. Thus ended the Abattoir scoring for the contest.

Thereafter, Williams was in difficulty in only one inning—the fifth—when an error and singles by Green and Leahy filled the bases with one out. Perrine and Kersey were not equal to the emergency and were victims of infield flies. After this inning Anderson's did not make another hit.

Langs tied up the count in the second stanza, scoring twice on a single by Smittle and doubles by Fuller and Blake. The score remained even until the sixth when an error put "Bulldog" Smith on first base, tantamount to committing suicide, for he eventually crossed the plate on another error.

This run would have been a sufficiency for the purpose of Langs, but to make sure the city champs would win, Andersons banded them another in the seventh, contriving to make two more errors after Blake had singled his way to first. Green and Perrine obtained two hits apiece for Andersons, while Blake was the only Lang player to hit more than once. He got a single and a double.

Were it not for the fact that no opportunity should be overlooked to administer a defeat to this Chevrolet team, the defeat of Andersons might be said to have had the beneficial result of tightening up the league race.

COUNTY FILES SUIT TO RECOVER FUNDS

A second suit arising from the failure of the Exchange Bank at Cedarville last May 4 was on file in Common Pleas Court, Friday.

The latest action, filed by Prosecuting Attorney Marcus E. McCallister on behalf of the Greene County Board of Commissioners, against the six directors of the closed bank, seeks to recover a judgment for $10,015.26, representing the amount of public county funds on deposit in the institution.

As was the case in a similar action instituted against the board of directors by the village of Cedarville, Thursday, the second suit is designed to recover on a $20,000 depository bond filed by the bank with the directors as sureties.

THE Sacred Eye By BRUCE E. GRIGGS A Story of Mystery and Love in The South Seas

READ THIS FIRST:

Jane Adams, Jay Bruce, Pilly Lightener, Tom Barry and Larry Holmes, "fed up" with life in Chicago, decide to take a trip to the South Seas motivated by the finding of an old ship's log dated in 1834, describing the cruise of a New England ship captain in quest of pearls. Jane and Larry, all working for a newspaper, quit their jobs when salaries are cut and, joined by the others, head for Tahiti in the South Seas. Before sailing Jane and Jay, and Pilly and Tom are married. Attempts are made by a strange girl, known only as Miss Whitney, to obtain possession of the ship's log. On shipboard Jay's cabin is ransacked, and they discover that the girl, Miss Whitney, is aboard. Arriving in Papeete, Tahiti, they are met by Maurice Beam, and his wife, Helen, old friends, who proceed to show them the island. As they make a round of the "spots" in Papeete, that night, they see the Whitney girl dancing with a strange man. Larry cuts in and dances with her. Later that night after they have retired Jay is aroused by a tap at his door and finds the Whitney girl there. The girl offers the entire party a cruise on her schooner, the Sequoia, and early in the morning they all set out bound for her island home on Montonga. Before leaving Papeete they discover she is a hereditary princess of a group of islands.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 9

AS I REACHED the head of the companionway and stepped on deck the Sequoia's bell struck twice, paused and rang again, sharp, melow notes. It was long after noon. Evidently I was the last one up for I discovered the others grouped on the after deck in the shade of a sail. It was a world of sunlight, sea and sky.

"I thought you would be larruping along eventually," Pilly shouted, discovering me. And so I stroled back to join them.

"Well, what's new?" I greeted them from the force of habit.

Holmes looked at me and shook his head sadly.

"There will be no editions today. We don't print on Christmas, New Years, the Fourth of July or Labor Day—and this is all of them."

"Thanks for the vacation," I answered lightly.

"The girl has a real boat here," Tom said as we strolled together around the deck a few minutes later. It was as trim as varnish, glistening white paint, holystone and metal polish could make her. Below were six large, commodious state-rooms, the main cabin, galley, the radio compartment and engine room aft. Forward of the hold were the crew's quarters. The crew of nine were a tall, powerful healthy looking lot, in tuamotu hats and shorts.

After a time we went below and stopped finally outside the radio room door. The operator, a native, was making some adjustments on his equipment. He looked up and grinned.

"Oh, hello," he said in perfect English. "I was asleep when we sailed last night. I'm Ufiko," he introduced himself. We told him our names.

"Well, I see we at least won't

BISHOP GREGG TO ADDRESS EAST HIGH

Bishop J. A. Gregg, Kansas City, Kan., president of Wilberforce University from 1920 to 1924, resigning in the latter year when he was elected a bishop of the A. M. E. Church, has consented to be the speaker at commencement exercises of East High School at the Opera House Friday night, May 27. Thirty graduates will receive diplomas.

Baccalaureate services for the graduating class will be held Sunday night, May 22, at Zion Baptist Church.

McKenna Turns Actor Fashion Is Factor

Kenneth McKenna, who completed his three-year Fox contract last week-end, has decided to chuck his directorial career and become an actor again.

Thus he joins Lowell Sherman, Lionel Barrymore and several other players, who have found megaphone jobs less alluring than they had imagined.

Even Eric Von Stroheim is devoting his full time to acting these days. McKenna says he is willing to don makeup again because of the new fashions in leading men. "Bob Williams started the trend," he says. "Now, you can be a leading man and still have a character part."

"What I objected to was the stereotyped role of a few years ago, where all you had to worry about was the selection of your wardrobe. It took me eight years to grow out of this kind of part on the stage and when I came out to Hollywood I found myself right back in it. I simply rebelled. Now, there is no longer the necessity."

Before he settles down to serious work, McKenna plans a European vacation with his wife, Kay Francis. They hope to leave as soon as she finishes her picture at Warners.

The busiest actor in Hollywood is Edward Everett Horton. When RKO decided to make a week of added scenes to "Roar of the Dragon," Horton was in San Francisco for a stage engagement in "Springtime for Henry." Nothing being impossible to the magician of the films, it has been arranged for him to fly to and fro daily. He takes off from San Francisco after the performance at night and reports to the studio in the morning. At 4 p. m. every day he takes off for the north, has his dinner and goes to the theater. His record commuting covers about 900 miles a day.

Hollywood turned out en masse for Colleen Moore's tea last Sunday afternoon. Jean Harlow, a siren to you, spent most of the afternoon talking to a gentle-looking old lady. Even the stars stare at Lilyan Tashman's clothes. For the tea Lilyan wore a dark blue twill suit with long coat pinched in at the waist with brass clips in front and at the back. Her hat was dark blue crepe with a white straw brim that swoops over one eye and ear, permitting the entire right side of the hair to show. Culinary note, discovered at the tea: potato chips dunked in a paste of cream cheese, cream, chives and onion juice. Colleen has signed a five-year contract at Metro.

Hollywood is wondering who won—Von Sternberg or Paramount? The director and Marlene Dietrich received many handshakes when they made their first appearance at the studio after the settlement of the row. The German star, attired in red and brown, appeared characteristically serene.

Good Gardening

DANDELION-PROOF TURF By DEAN HALLIDAY Garden Expert for Central Press and The Gazette

Did it ever occur to you that one good way of ridding your lawn of dandelions is to grow the grass so tightly that the pesky dandelions can't even shove their heads up through it?

Dandelion-proof turf can be grown and it is not such a difficult task. If sulphate of ammonia is used. This produces an acid reaction in the soil, and acid is disastrous to dandelions but harmless to grass. It also results in a soil high in nitrogen, which stimulates leaf growth, so essential to a strong thick turf.

Care should be exercised, however, in the use of sulphate of ammonia. Not more than a pound or two should be used to every 500 square feet of turf. The powdered sulphate of ammonia should be scattered evenly over the surface of the lawn, and watered in thoroughly immediately after application. It is always well to use a fertilizer with the ammonia compound. A good complete fertilizer should be mixed with the sulphate in equal parts before applying.

MUSICAL COMEDY TO BE PRODUCED HERE AT SCHOOL SUNDAY

Miss Ruth Galliger, Leaman St., will be featured in the leading role when the junior and senior girls' glee clubs of St. Brigid Church present a musical comedy and opera, "Miss Carruthers Returns" at St. Brigid School auditorium Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

Action of the play takes place at "Miss Carruthers'" school for girls for the advancement of art, music and dancing. "Miss Carruthers" leaves the school, supposedly on a visit, but returns disguised as a maid to learn just how the school is conducted while she is away. What she finds out before she reveals her identity at the close of the play forms an amusing plot. Miss Galliger will play the part of "Miss Carruthers."

Others in the cast who have leading roles are Miss Katherine Graham, as "Mrs. Jones," matron of the school, and Miss Elizabeth McCurran, as "Deadmona," her niece. Students at the school will be Mrs. Katherine Farrell and Miss Katherine Hibbert, as dramatic art students; Miss Eleanor McDonnell, a voice student; the Misses Alsetta Gorham and Katherine Kelble, dancing pupils; Miss Mary McDonnell, piano student and the Misses Anne Rachford and Josephine Graham, art students. Mrs. John Rachford will be the "maid." In addition to the principals there will be a chorus of twenty-five young women.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the cast or may be purchased at the door. The first eight rows, including 150 seats, of the auditorium will be reserved.

CANDIDATES MUST REPORT EXPENSES

All local Republican and Democratic candidates for public offices, whose names appeared on the ballots at Tuesday's primary election, are required to file campaign expense accounts, listing receipts and disbursements, if any, with the board of elections within ten days after the election.

W. J. Davis, county surveyor, re-nominated on the Republican ticket without opposition, and who will also be unopposed at the November election, was the first candidate to file his expense statement. He spent nothing and received nothing.

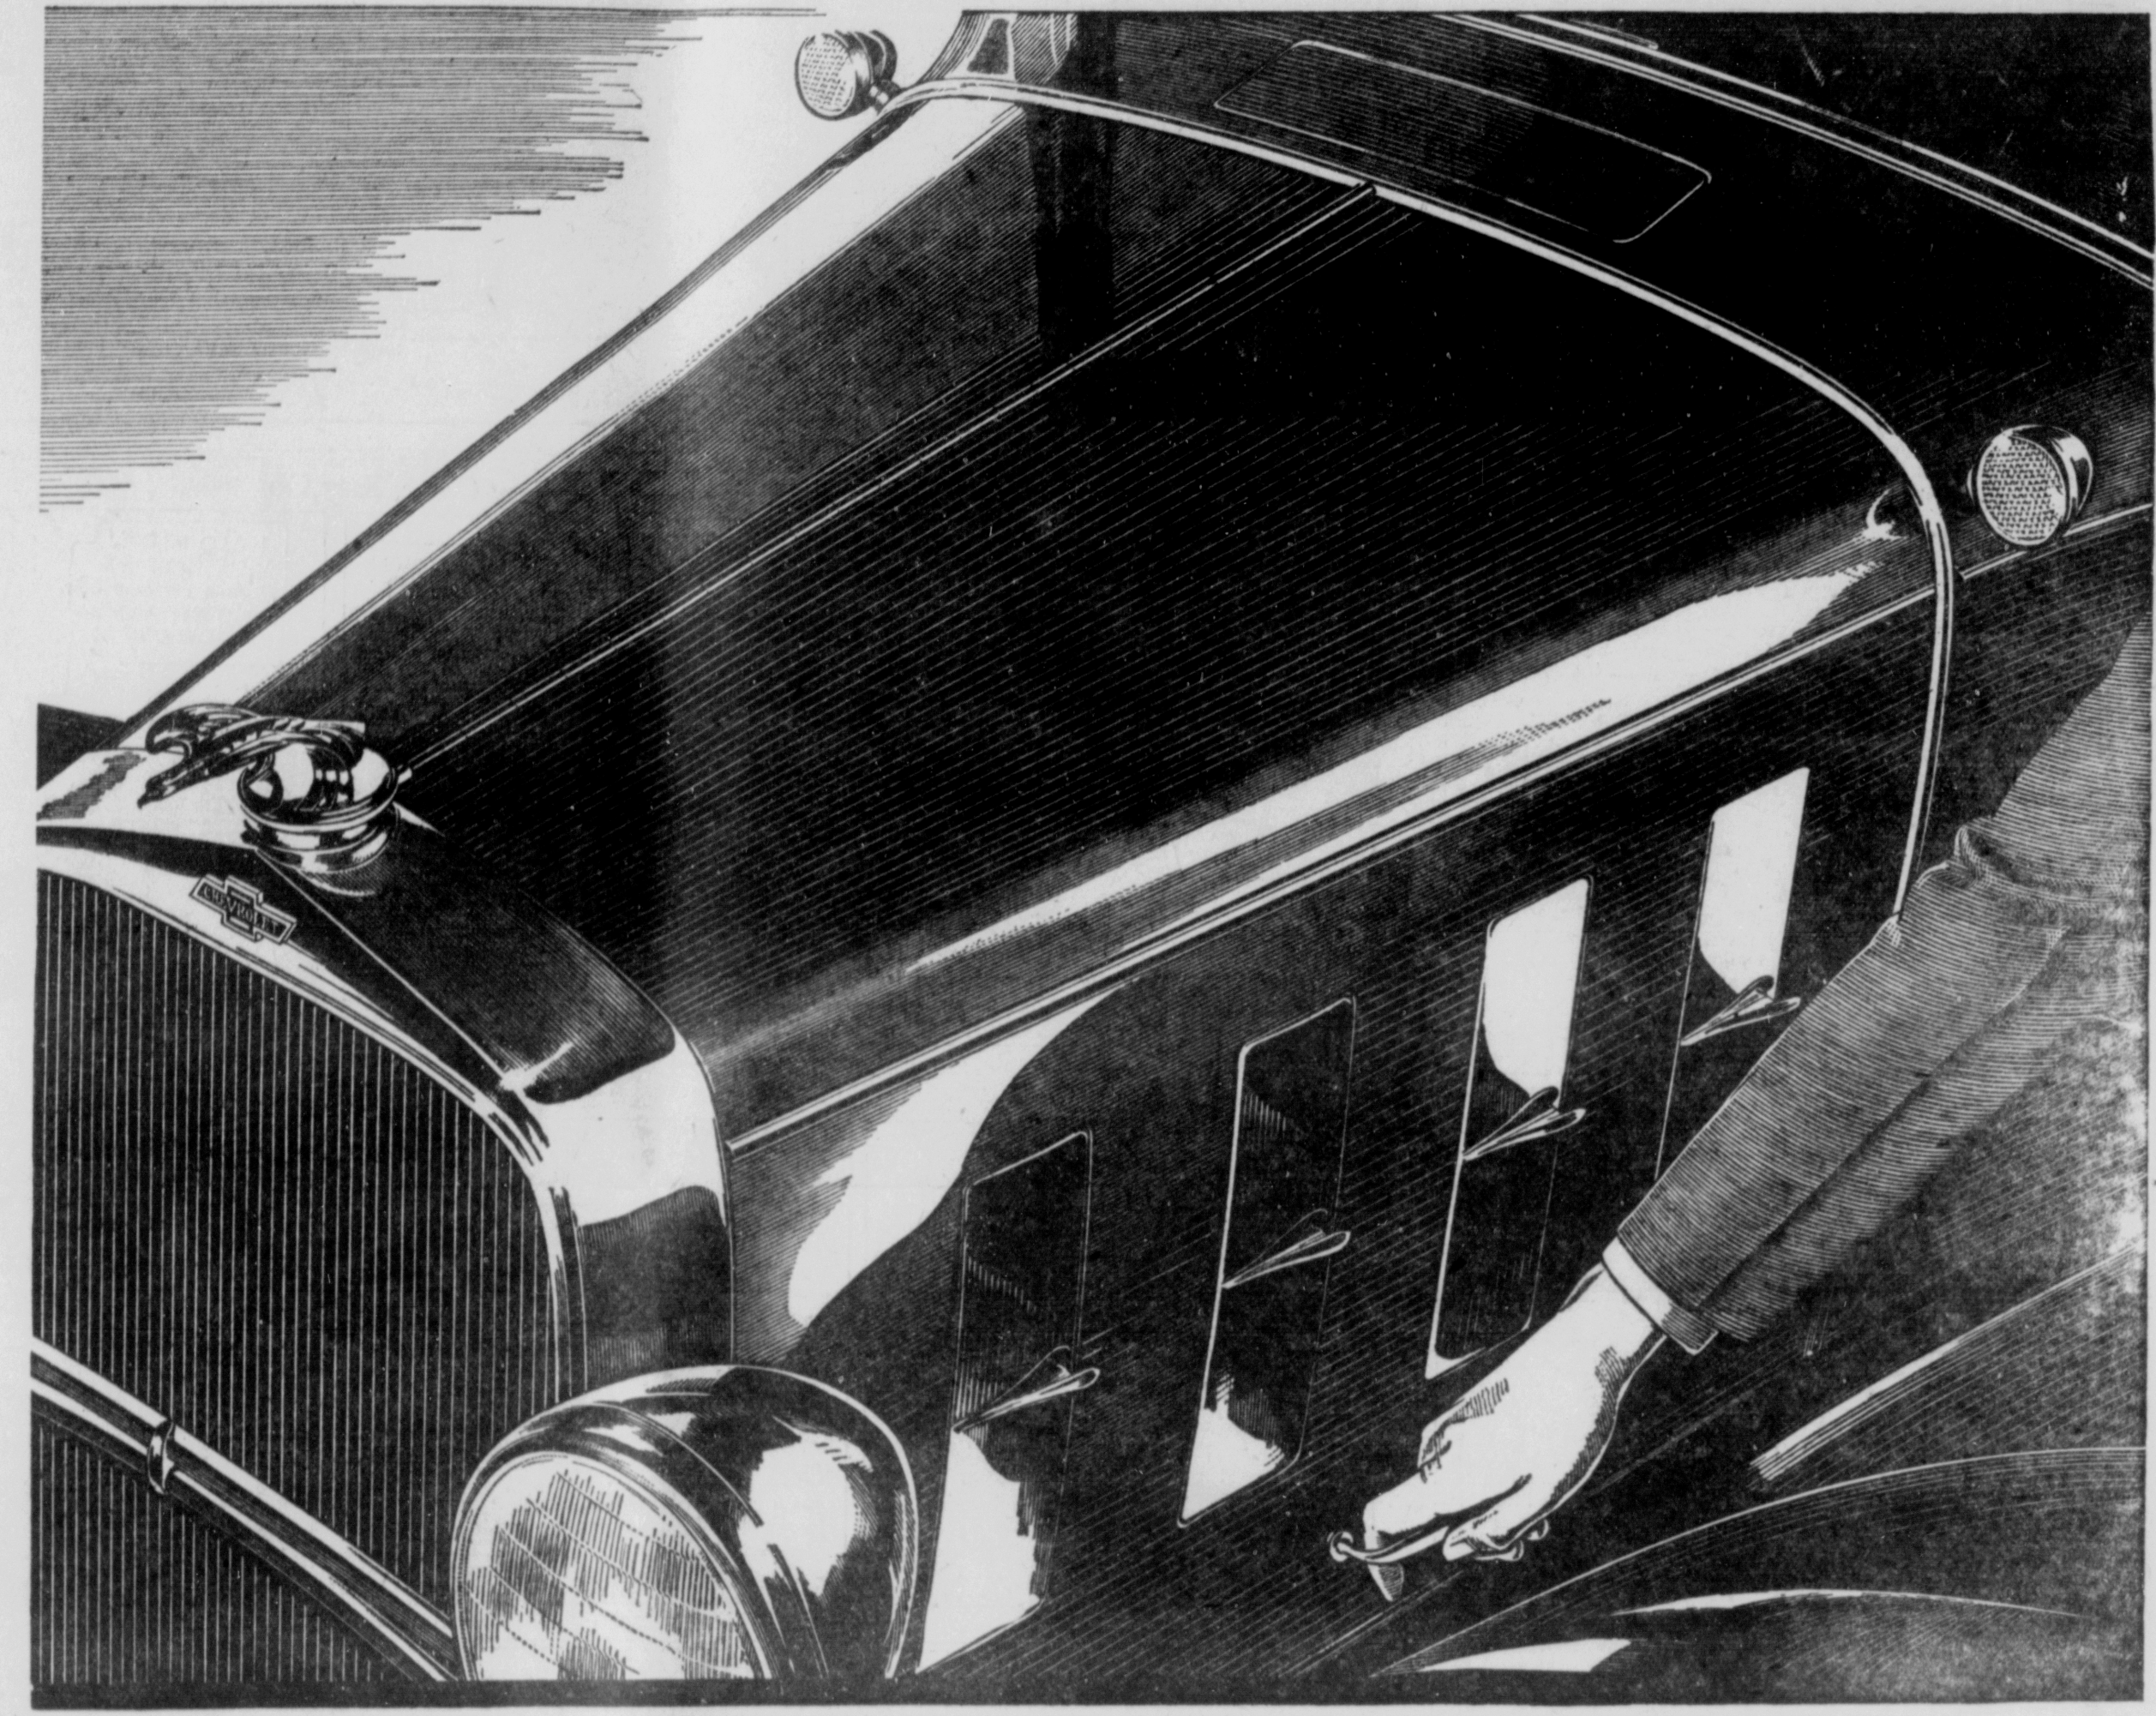

Accounts must be filed by 6:30 p. m. May 20. Items in excess of $10 should be accompanied by receipted bills.

BENEATH THIS HOOD you will find the time-proved and reliable Chevrolet motor, which combines unequalled economy with smoothness, speed, quietness and flexibility

Raise that big, impressive Chevrolet hood. Look at that fine, modern, six-cylinder engine underneath. Right there lies one of the chief reasons why Chevrolet continues to be America's largest-selling automobile!

For that engine is a six—and only a six, as Chevrolet builds it, combines both the smoothness you want and the economy you want. With anything more than six cylinders, you sacrifice Chevrolet's famous low cost of operation—the lowest of any car you can buy. With anything less than six cylinders, you sacrifice the inherent smoothness that makes driving enjoyable.

That engine is mechanically sound—Over three and a half years of continuous improving, refining, and testing have gone into its development. The result: It's as nearly 100% perfect as the motor of a quality low-priced car can be!

That engine is thoroughly proved—Its basic design and construction have been tested and proved by billions of miles of service, in the hands of millions of owners. And today, over a hundred thousand of these engines are in daily service on the roads of America.

That engine is up-to-date in every respect

—Due to many mechanical advancements, it develops 60 horsepower—delivers a top speed of from 65 to 70 miles an hour—accelerates from a standstill to 35 miles an hour in less than 7 seconds. Combined with Free Wheeling and Syncro-Mesh shifting, it delivers performance thrills no other low-priced car can equal.

Its advantages are yours for as little as $445—Due to new reduced prices, the new Chevrolet Six now sells for one of the very lowest prices in the motor car market. And all 14 big, high-quality models are available for immediate delivery.
